Call for Industry Innovation Projects at CDM

What is an Industry Innovation Project?
Do you need an innovative technology solution?

The Master of Digital Media (MDM) is a professional graduate program focusing on collaboration, problem solving, critical thinking, leading and managing, communication, ideation, and innovation. Our diverse group of students engage in client-facing projects in the second and third terms of their program. An Industry Innovation Project is an opportunity for students to gain real-world experience during their studies and clients to gain connections to a talent pipeline as well as innovative solutions to problems they are looking to solve.

Projects start in January and May of each year, and last for 12 weeks.

What is in it for Industry?
Access a diverse talent pipeline of students who will focus on creating applied solutions for your business challenges, including:

- Playable or interactive prototypes
- Visualization and design architectures
- Proof-of-concept demos and walkthroughs
- Spatial exploration and installations
- Low-risk market validation potential

Impact for Investment

- 1500 - 2000 hours of student-led applied R+D, visualization, and communication
- Dedicated faculty supervisor
- Work with a multidisciplinary, multicultural team
- Clients retain all IP and asset ownership
- Use project meeting space on campus
- Did we mention the diverse talent pipeline?

What Skills do Students Bring?
Multidisciplinary project teams of 4 to 6 students work 35 hours per week through their 12-week term. They contribute professional experience and technical skills such as:

- Design (UX/UI, graphic, game)
- Art (2D, 3D, animation, VFX)
- Development (game, web, VR/AR, app)
- Management (marketing, product, project)
- Diverse global thinking

The teams will be following an iterative, agile development model.
